The First Steam Engine
About Ladies' Nerves
90 and 19
It's "Cobb" Now

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1921, Star Co.
Little read news today, and a chance to answer questions.

Mr. John G. White and others ask about the Greek inventor of the steam engine, alleged to have been shown in the Serapion long ago. Whether it was a toy steam boat tried on some little tank, or on the Nile, a toy engine running around on wheels in the great corridors of the temple, or a tiny engine doing nothing in particular, this writer doesn't know. Perhaps the learned Michelson, of the University of Chicago, could tell.
John W. Draper, page 271, not of his "Intellectual Development of Europe," says: "A direct interval of almost twenty centuries parts Hero, whose first steam engine revolved in the Serapion, from James Watt, who has revolutionized the industry of the world."

The Serapion, or Serapeum, was the most magnificent temple in all the world; its library possessed the two hundred thousand volumes given by Marc Antony to Cleopatra. It was located in Alexandria and was destroyed, books and all, by zealous early Christians who mistook mysterious brass spheres for instruments of witchcraft, not knowing that they had been used to measure the size of the earth and determine the motions of Venus. See Draper's book for the interesting details.

There was a strange god in that temple, with the dog Cerberus at his feet, a serpent, probably to proclaim wisdom, and a basket, to represent plenty, on his head. The Christians, when they came and got him. They knocked his head off, laughed when he couldn't defend himself, were much delicious when his rats ran out of his broken body. They revealed all the tricks and impostures that pagan priests had used to delude the mob, and even invented a few new ones in their stead.

Part of what they did was justified, for the pagans had previously caught Christians and burned them alive on the altar of Serapis.

The great pity is the destruction of the magnificent temple, the statues, paintings and, above all, the books, that can never be replaced.

Many a work of the Greek philosophers, poets, and dramatists disappeared forever, in the attack on that foolish old god.

Interesting to us is the fact that Hero of Alexandria, born about the beginning of our era, could describe in his book Pneumatica "symphons, penny-in-the-slot machines, a fire engine, a water-organ, and arrangements employing the force of steam."

"Will you please lecture women suffering with nerves?"
With pleasure, although the space is limited. Nervous women suffer from too much, or not enough, fat. A fat woman is nervous, unhappy, because of defective metabolism, which means the processes that build up and then break it down and get rid of it, when it has served its purpose.

Being too thin is responsible for more nervousness than being too fat. Women have a ridiculous idea that to be "skinny" is to be beautiful. To be normal is the only beauty. From one year to fourteen a female should be round and corpulent; from fourteen to eighteen, thin; from eighteen to twenty-five, plump, but still comparatively thin; from twenty-five to forty she should slowly put on from fifteen to twenty-five pounds. She should stay that way until seventy-five.
When the extra pounds should gradually disappear, bringing her back at ninety to the figure and the weight of sixteen. And she can be just as interesting, mentally as busy as at nineteen, to any man with an ounce of brains.

A really thin woman of thirty-five or forty is abnormal, as unpleasant to the knowing eyes, and in as dangerous condition, physically and nervously, as a very thin baby. Let women remember that and there will be fewer thin ones.

Did you ever, long ago, go to Queensdown, drive in a side car to town, along The Ball of Shandon, wonder how it could possibly be so green in winter, how the people could be so good-natured with feet and legs bare and whence came the extraordinary charm of Tutty Fitzgerald, who poured comfort into glassed places on a rough board laid up by two barrels?

You can't do exactly that any more. Quezdown changes its name now, and Queensdown becomes Queens. That change is right.
They don't want Queens in Ireland now. But it is to be hoped that they won't change Cork, Dublin, Patrick, Dillo or Tulmore, or the "Banks of Liffey."

This is or will be the eye of St.
Agnes. Take the excellent advice of young Mr. Christopher Morley and read, today, Edgar Allan Poe of that name. It is you good critically, whoever you are, to improve you, materially, if you write, or edit, or review, or newspaper or other stuff for a living. While you have the volume read also some "On the First Looking into Chapman's Homers." And to learn how style is formed, at first, by imitation, as young lords learn to fly, read some of Keats' earliest writings.
For perfect beauty read the "Ode to a Nightingale" and "Ode on a Grave." Continued on Page 2, Column 5.

DESIRES REVENGE ON HUB LAWYER

Expose to Form Basis of New Prosecutions by Attorney-General

William J. Corcoran, former district attorney for Middlesex County, mentioned in a recent issue of the Boston American, has turned State's evidence.
Corcoran made a full confession to Attorney General Weston Allen at his office in the State House yesterday.
His confession, consisting of typewritten papers, contains a complete exposure of Corcoran's inner knowledge of the workings of the local blackmail trust and kindred intrigues.
Corcoran was implied to make a clean breast of it and partly to avenge himself on a Boston lawyer whom he had indicted recently.

ACCUSED OF HAVING DRUGS, HELD IN $5,000

Anthony Corcoran, Lowell street, West End, was held in $5,000 bond by United States Commissioner Wander on a charge of illegal possession of morphine and cocaine. A motion for the return of the seized narcotics and the car in which they are alleged to have been found, on the grounds the officers did not have a search warrant, was overruled. Corcoran is under indictment on another charge. Louis Edlin, of Morgan street, Chelsea's chauffeur, was released.

POPE OVERGE OF DEATH

MURDER SPEEDED DENIED BY LOUD

"I Did Not Kill Officer Preston," He Says on Stand

"Mr. Loud, did you shoot and kill Jim Preston?"
Attorney John P. Feeney shot this question at Clarence W.
Loud as he stood on the witness stand in the East Cambridge Superior Court today.

"No, sir, I did not," Loud snapped out in reply.

Then he added that he had not the slightest idea who had shot Preston, the crime which the State charges on him.

This ended the direct testimony of Loud. District Attorney Salmonst immediately began his cross-examination.

During the recess hour hundreds of persons stormed the Court House, seeking to obtain seats and hear Loud's own story. A crowd gathered outside the Court House. Inside the corridors on all floors were filled with a restless crowd, all eager to get into the room where the trial is held.

POINTS TOLD BY LOUD.

In his direct testimony Loud declared:
That the first he had heard of the case "Alton Bennett" was after he had been arrested on the murder charge.

That he could not account for the entry of his name and that of "Alton Bennett" in the Patrolman's report.

That he had never seen Patrolman Preston in life, that his first sight of him was in the police station.

That he had no idea how his substantial operator's license left him that he did not remember showing the license to any policeman at any time.

That he was not warned of his rights when he was first questioned by the police.
The defendant was sworn as a witness by Clerk Ralph N. Smith. On Fridays he began his story.
"I was born in Merrimack March 18, 1874," Loud testified. "I went to

Leroy, who was arrested in New York last week, was released after a hearing before Judge F. J. Connelley. He was released on $10,000 bail, and is now in the custody of the New York

NEW ENGLAND COKE

LIST OF SLAIN N. Y. POLICEMEN INCREASED

9 Officers of Metropolis Shot to Death During Last Thirteen Months

By Associated Press.

New York, Jan. 20.—Last night's killing of Patrolman Otto W. Mox by Frank Whaley, a negro, who had been picked up on suspicion of insanity, increased to nine the list of New York policemen shot to death in the last thirteen months. Eight were the victims of criminal gunmen, the other was laid low by a fellow policeman.

Of the slayers, two are awaiting trial, two were convicted of murder, one was confined in an institution for criminal insanity, two were executed and one escaped without leaving a clue to his identity.

The list of killings began on December 29, 1919, when Lieutenant David Horton was shot down while trying to halt a gang of bandits fleeing in a motor car.

On February 11, 1921, Detective Joseph J. Bradgits was killed by Charles Davis, a Brooklyn chemist, in the latter's office.

Patrolman Joseph T. Connelly was killed early on the morning of March 17, while raiding a crap game in Brooklyn.

Patrolman Daniel J. Neville fell on January 15, while attempting to arrest William P. Hoey, gangster, drug addict and convict.

The body of Patrolman Joseph A. Donohue was found on the morning of September 23, dying in Riverside street at No. 100 North street, the murderers escaped.

The first notable case was that of Detective William A. Miller and Patrolman Joseph T. Connelly, killed on January 5 by Luther B. Harten, desperado, whose flight through three States and eventual capture in Philadelphia followed in sensational fashion the first of the New Year's list, now grows to four.

Motive for the latest crime is still lacking. Whaley had been taken to a police station for investigation after complaints that he was acting queerly. Left alone in a waiting room, he refused the pistol of the unexpecting officer when the latter came in to rest and shoot him through the brain.

TUBERCULOSIS TOLL IN FRAMINGHAM REDUCED

A decline of 78 per cent. in the death rate from tuberculosis in Framingham is attributed by the National Tuberculosis Association to the work of the health demonstration begun there in 1917. Physical examination, education and adequate care of all cases discovered are given the credit in a statement just issued by the national association.

STAGE EMPLOYE'S BALL ENJOYED BY HUNDREDS

Stage and film stars together with hundreds of their admirers turned out to make the second annual ball of the Theatrical Stage Employes at the Metropolitan Building the biggest thing of its kind in years. The affair opened with an overture by an orchestra of fifty pieces, led by Charles Frank of the Boston Theatre, and the grand march was led by Fred Stone of "Tip Top" and Paul Harold of the "Irene" company.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY Rummage Sale Again Wins Place on Social Calendar

By BETTY ALDEN

The rummage sale may have a bit more to say for itself now and then, but it is never a complete "take-out."

November and December became enmeshed in an endless chain of these affairs, and the matrons of the smart set, realizing this, were wise enough to refrain from them for almost the entire month of the new year. Almost, but not quite—for on January 19 and 21 a rummage sale will be held in aid of the House of Mercy. Mrs. Timothy Adams (Mrs. of Chestnut street, Mrs. Edward Brandages of "Faulkner Farm," Brookline, and Mrs. Francis Appleton of Marlboro street, who are among the leading spirits for the sale, announce that they will be glad to receive all manner of donations at No. 463 Boylston street on any day after January 23, between the hours of 10 and 1 o'clock.

Anything salable, including hats or looks, clothes for men, women and children, will be welcome as contributions. Other members of the committee include Mesdames Gerald A. Brunswick, G. W. Brewster, Randolph Wade, Robert C. Main, Ellen S. Draper, Marshall Folsom, Richard Lawrence and Lawrence W. Morgan. I note that practically all of these matrons have had not a little experience in the way of conducting such charity events, so that the sale should be the last two days of the month promises to raise a substantial sum in aid of the House of Mercy.

The news that Nancy Ely is to become a bride in less than a month's time is naturally causing a most perceptible flutter among the "first family" contingent, for ever since her debut, several years ago, has the popular daughter of Mrs. C. C. Coleman Ely of Fairfield street played a prominent part in the various activities of her coterie.

The man whom Miss Ely will promise to "love, honor and obey" is John B. Churchill, son of Mrs. Florence Winthrop Churchill of Boylston street. The bridegroom-to-be, who now serves in the West War, is a graduate of Harvard, class of '21.

The ceremony, which is calculated to bring out a most exclusive gathering of society folk, will take place in Trinity Church, at 3 p. m., on February 11. The church will be well filled with guests, but because of the limited space only the more intimate friends and relatives have been invited to the reception which is to follow immediately after at the home of the bride.

Miss Ely belongs to the 1917 Sewing Circle, and everyone knows that the group of girls who made their debut that year stand out conspicuously for their charm and cleverness along a number of lines. Also, several brides are included in this group. There is Mrs. Alex Tonne (Elizabeth Whitting), whose wedding took place in October and who now makes her home in New York; Mrs. Alexander Wheeler (Agnes Greck), whose marriage took place less than a year ago; while the most recently wedded bride is Mrs. Delight Ruhl (Margaret Gaudin), whose important ceremonial number among the nuptial events of October.

Of those in this group who have distinguished themselves in the way of perchance are Louise Harlow, lately returned from a trip abroad; Mary Seymour, and last-but not least—Ellen Bennett, who has achieved no little fame for her clever impersonations of "leading-ladies" in the Vincent Club shows. Among the younger matrons belonging to the 1917 contingent are Mrs. Augusta Thorndike, Mrs. Olivia Lovell, Mrs. Neil Rice (Emma Mandell), Mrs. Amy Carey (Louise Elder), now of New York, as well as Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw, Jr. (Augustine van Winkle), who was one of the leading spirits at the widely-remembered Good Luck Ball held just a week ago to night in aid of the South End Music School. Other girls of the 1917 group are the Misses Anna Bonnell Perkins, Margaret Greenwood, Rosemond Lamb, Cornelia Pike, Anna Sturgis, Fliss Stanwood and Dorothy Allen.

Some of our good friends have asked us why HATHAWAY'S CREAM BREAD costs one cent more than other loaves on the market. It seems hardly necessary to explain, the answer is so plain.

This extra cent represents actual difference in cost. The fresh milk and other rich materials in HATHAWAY'S CREAM BREAD cost a full extra cent. In return you get bread of superior flavor, rich in food value, and the best keeping loaf on the market.

When you view bread as not just bread, but as the cheapest and most important item of your meal, can you afford to give your family anything less than the very best?

HATHAWAY'S CREAM BREAD has already been reduced in price three times, and today sells at only three cents above the lowest price before the war. Further reductions will be made when it is possible to do so without subtracting quality and food value.

If, however, you feel that you should consider price first, you will find HATHAWAY'S WIN-SUM BREAD, at the new reduced price, an excellent loaf of superior quality.

ENGLISH GIRL TRAINS FOR TIGHT ROPE WALK ACROSS NIAGARA

THE LADY FISH TAKES HER FIRST WATER PLUNGE! Miss Louise Elliott of Knoxville, Tenn., is a Southern beauty who went further South—to Miami to frolic. She has national reputation as swimmer and fancy diver.

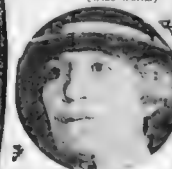

REGISTERING "TERROR" OUGHT TO BE EASY FOR HIM! Monty Banks, who cavorts in the movies, is shown here earning his salary. The thriller is guaranteed to "knock 'em off their seats," if the job doesn't knock Monty off first. It's a great life if you don't weaken. Taken in Los Angeles.

HOW WOULD YOU LIKE TO HAVE THIS Sampled Closely Around You? The sweater, of course. It's all Copenhagen blue brushed wool and with ten turns one of season's smartest smart outfits.

HIGH, but Not Dirty! Miss Lillian Boyer, who is here doing a two-step—is it a fox trot?—on the wing of a plane. She is the world's greatest woman daredevil. Lillian can't dare us! (Wide World.)

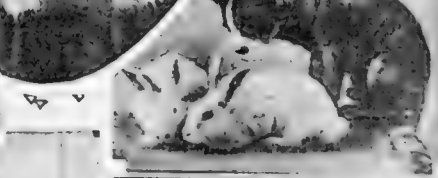

PLAYFUL! Mrs. Maybelle Roe, convicted man-slayer, who is recovering from attack on her by Madame Obenshain, growing out of remarks made by the former about the Birch trial. Mrs. Obenshain faces trial for murder of J. Belton Kinsley. (Underwood.)

BE HEALTHY OF BODY TO BE HEALTHY OF MIND! That's the recipe of Bessie Lee Harvey, most beautiful student of face and figure at Bryn Mawr. Apparently she is well informed. Furthermore, she is a splendid swimmer and all-around athlete. (Underwood.)

CUPID HITS A FIGHTER! Mrs. Louise Crowwell Brooks, one of Washington's prominent society matrons, who is engaged, according to capital authorities, to Brig.-Gen. Douglas Arthur, West Point commandant. (Wide World.)

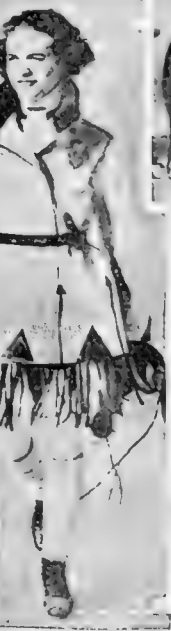

"RINTON," THE BULLDOG, and his Bonny Bunch! Canine are instinctively the enemies of all rabbits, but "Rinton" is a different dog. He does all sorts of tricks and was trained from puppyhood. He is an argument against the belief that the bulldog breed is brainless. (Underwood.)

PATIENCE SECOND ONLY TO VIRTUE! For a long years Zagloul Henyat, a native of Bombay, India, has been working on this miniature temple of brass, ordered by an Indian potentate. The details of the brass work are tremendous. Having is perhaps the greatest brass worker in India. The temple is the master workman's masterpiece. (Gillman.)

MAURICE BART BLOOM, bonafactor of the blind and England's largest optical manufacturer, has just perfected a way to take the ultra violet ray from all spectra. Now waiting U. S. (International.)

LOOKS Like a Lady Bulgarian! But it's only one of the smart merry-makers at St. Moritz, Switzerland, attired in a Peirce sport model of white leather with red trimmings. (International.)

LEGGING IT AROUND GERMANY! This isn't a new device, but never before has it been used to travel over a nation. Otto William of Norderburg, Prussia, attracted wide attention when he traversed Germany through its difficult waterways. Contrivance is similar to bicycle, except that peddle propel the machine. (International.)

THE PRETTY MOTORIST TEST, New Nearing Its End, Has Been Lots of Fun! It has been so successful that we are going to run another one even more interesting. Watch for it! Today's winner is Miss Doris Fanner, 25 Down St., Rosbury. A check for $5 will be mailed to her.

WATCH YOUR STEP, GIRLIE! Miss Eleanor, an English girl, who recently announced that she was going to do a Blandin across Niagara Falls, is now in training for the stunt. She is a tightrope walker and only 16 years old. She has never had an accident. Kneel, kneel, Eleanor! She will soon sail for America. (Wide World.)

SAID Joe Neimeyer, vaudeville actor: "I've lost too many partners by marriage—quack I'll marry Margaret Davies." Said Margaret: "The willis." Said Margaret's father: "Nothin' doin'." My daughter's only 16 and no actor would have." Chicago police should stopped wedding at the request of papa. (International.)

COLLEGE STUDENT IS VICTIM OF POISON

New York, Jan. 20.—The body of James N. Nary, a twenty-two year old student at Georgetown University, was found at the home of his parents at No. 14 Hamilton street, Washington, D. C., where the student's companion, the lady, According to James Nary's father, the two students told him that the professor in charge of the course in which Nary was to take a course that had ended with a lecture on the use of poisons, had given a lecture on the subject during the afternoon.

The father said that Nary's mother told her in the night Nary's companion had bought anti-venom pills.

New York, Jan. 20.—The body of Eugene A. Neary, a twenty-two-year-old student who died from a gunshot wound at Georgetown University, was buried at the home of his parents at 1260 Tenthredon avenue, Belleville, N. J. Two fellow students accompanied the body.

A speaking to James Neary, father of the student, told the students today that the professor in charge of the class had led a group of five students to a lecture that led to the shooting. Neary said the professor had left the lecture fifteen minutes after the shooting.

The student's family is in the city in the night. Neary said he had suffered a severe shock from losing the student.

A milk from high-bred cows, fed in rich dairying districts, kept in sanitary dairies and regularly inspected.

A sterilized milk, utterly germ-free. It has none of the dangers of raw milk.

An extra-rich milk, with more than twice the butter fat of bottled milk. Reduce it to the richness that you like.

No Extra Cost

This ideal milk costs you no more than other evaporated milk.

It costs you less than milkman's milk—much less, for it saves all waste. You can keep small cans and large cans ever on the shelf. Open what you need.

The Van Camp experts have spent 20 years to bring you a milk like this. They have established condenseries in many great dairying districts.

There the fresh milk is put into a vacuum. Under a low heat we remove half the water. Then we sterilize the milk.

The milk is otherwise unaltered.
Use it as it comes for your coffee.
Dilute it somewhat for cereals. Add an equal part of water for drinking.
Dilute it still further for cooking.

The New-Day Milk

This is the new-day milk. It is bound to displace germ-laden milk in any careful home. Or milk from common cows.

It has come to save waste. It will encourage milk using because it is clean and safe, but it saves on the left-over milk.

Compare it with bottled milk. Compare it with other evaporated. You owe that to yourself and yours.

For a brief second Lelita's eyes looked into his with innocent bravado. She passed on, her delectable chin tilting into the air in disdain. "Who is that?" the Minister asked.

SWORD in hand, Gregorio advanced. He would show that he, too, could play and kill a bull! He maneuvered so that he faced towards Lolita, towards that shawl. Manuelito, close at hand, glanced at that red square of silk. Surely it moved! Gregorio raised his sword for the fatal thrust. Even as he delivered it, he glanced involuntarily upwards. His eye caught a vivid broad red patch that floated down from the balcony. . . . Is Friendship stronger than Love? See page 8 of Hearst's International for February.

"I killed a man, but no one threatens me. There was no excuse. I didn't kill him out of jealousy or love. I saw him only once, for the first and last time. I killed him because somebody had said to me 'kill' and the church bells had rung with the command 'Thou shalt kill!'" "The Man I Killed," by Maurice Rostand, a tremendous indictment of War that has set all Europe talking. In the February number—just out,

"I want to get out of bed!" Gilda said in a strange, frightened voice, struggling to free her body of the sheets. . . . Sutton restrained her, forcing her back to her pillow with shaking hands.

"Let me say right here, Mr. Sherlock Holmes," he began, "that money is nothing to me in this case. This woman is innocent and this woman has to be cleared, and it's up to you to do it."

Send me at once, at your special price for one-quarter year subscription, the January and February issues of your magazine containing the first two installments of Robert W. Chambers' startling new novel "THE TALKERS." Also send me the March issue as soon as published. For these three magazines I enclose 50 cents, which is 55 cents less than the regular price.
